8. Use of Social Media Plug-ins

Plug-ins ("plug-ins") of different social media networks are embedded in our web pages. The associated services are provided by the respective companies ("providers"). These providers are:

Facebook is operated by Facebook Inc., 1601 S. California Ave, Palo Alto, CA 94304, USA ("Facebook"). For an overview of the Facebook plug-ins and their appearance, go to: <https://developers.facebook.com/docs/plugins>

Twitter is operated by Twitter Inc., 1355 Market St, Suite 900, San Francisco, CA 94103, USA ("Twitter"). For an overview of the Twitter buttons and their appearance, go to: <https://twitter.com/about/resources/buttons>

Google+ and YouTube are provided by Google Inc., 1600 Amphitheater Parkway, Mountainview, California 94043, USA ("Google"). For an overview of the Google+ plug-ins and their appearance, go to: <https://developers.google.com/+web/>; for the YouTube plugins, go to: <https://developers.google.com/youtube/subscribe/>

To increase the protection afforded to your data when you visit our web pages, these plug-ins are implemented as "2-click buttons." This form of integration ensures that, when accessing a page from within our website containing such plug-ins, you are not automatically connected to the providers' servers. Only if you activate the plug-ins and thereby permit for data transmission, the browser will create a direct link to the providers' servers. The content of the various plug-ins is then transmitted by the provider concerned directly to your browser and then displayed on your screen.

The plug-in tells the provider which of our website pages you have accessed. If, while viewing our website, you are logged into your user account with the respective provider, he is able to collate your interest, i.e. the information you are accessing, with your user account. On making use of any of the plug-in functions (e.g. clicking the "Like" button, leaving a comment), this information too will be transmitted by the browser directly to the provider for retention.
